Avilar Technologies and Capital Edge Learning Partner to Deliver Complete E-Learning Solutions to Corporate and Government Organizations

(Reston, VA and Laurel, MD) February 24, 2005—Avilar Technologies, Inc., a leading competency management and e-learning company, and Capital Edge Learning, a fast-growing e-learning solutions company, have announced an agreement to partner in providing complete e-learning solutions to corporate and government clients. Under the new partnership, Avilar Technologies and Capital Edge Learning will offer custom e-learning content development, strategic e-learning consulting, and content management services, along with the WebMentor e-learning and competency management systems.

“As e-Learning and competency management have become more integrated with workforce development and organizational strategy, the services required are becoming more complex,” said John Skowlund, Chief Executive Officer of Avilar. He continued, “Capital Edge has the expertise that allows us to provide clients with a complete range of e-learning and workforce development services.”

David Loughran, CEO of Capital Edge Learning, said, “E-Learning is rapidly gaining widespread attention and adoption, it is now possible for every organization to benefit from an e-learning solution at some level. Partnering with Avilar further enhances CEL’s ability to deliver end-to-end e-Learning solutions to our clients.”

The agreement allows Avilar and Capital Edge Learning to offer product and services under each other’s brand names, or directly through a referral arrangement. The partnership also creates a vehicle for Avilar and Capital Edge Learning to act as a team, thereby merging each company’s resources and capabilities in order to manage larger projects. As an example working together Avilar and Capital Edge Learning will be able to offer customized content and content delivery based on a comprehensive examination of an organization’s skill sets and current skills gaps.
